WHAT IS HOUSEHOLD HAZARDOUS WASTE?

Household hazardous waste is any material discarded from the home that may, due to its chemical nature, pose a health threat to people, animals, and the environment if handled or disposed of improperly.

Some signal words that indicate a product is hazardous include:

- | | |
|----------------|------------------|
| Toxic | Caution |
| Danger | Flammable |
| Poison | Corrosive |
| Warning | Reactive |

Hazardous products include many types of the following items:

- Paint (oil and water based)
- Household cleaners
- Automotive products*
- Pesticides
- Fertilizers
- Computer monitors & televisions (combined limit of 5 units)
- Other electronics
- Fluorescent lights
- Batteries (all types)
- Stains & varnish
- Mercury (thermometers, thermostats, switches, etc.)
- Hobby chemicals
- Polishes

* If you only have used motor oil, oil filters, or auto batteries, bring these items to one of Escondido's Certified Used Oil Recycling Centers, listed on the back of this page.
